BACKGROUND OF CONC REVIEW OF COMMITTEES

The ConC charge was amended in February 2011 to include the following provisions:

b. To meet during the fall semester with committee chairs, on a rotating basis determined by the committee, to review with each committee chair the charge to the committee and how well it has been functioning, and pursuant to these discussions, to make recommendations to the Senate Consultative Committee about any changes in committee structure, charge, or membership which it deems appropriate.

c. To review and forward as appropriate to the University Senate any proposed changes to the charge, membership, or ex officio members for committees of the University Senate prior to approval from the University Senate.

The ConC began its review of the Senate committees in Fall 2011 and this report is for the second set of committees undergoing review. The process was described in the initial letter to the committee chair (attachment) and consisted of 1) a meeting between the ConC Chair and the chair of the committee being reviewed, 2) a discussion at a meeting of the committee that would be moderated by two members of the ConC, and 3) confidential feedback after the meeting from members via email or phone calls.

The ConC determined that it would create a report to synthesize the feedback it received. The report would then be shared with each committee under review for additional comments before being presented to the appropriate Consultative Committee and Senate.

Types of Questions asked of the committee members:

1. Thinking of what the committee has done in the past few years, does the charge encompass these efforts?
2. Are there enough/too many members?
3. Is the membership distribution – type of members, gender, campus, etc. – adequate?
4. Are there other members of the University community that would be appropriate to add, to serve in an ex officio manner?
OVERALL COMMENTS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

ConC has three overall recommendations that came from this year’s review process. These apply to all Senate Committees to greater or lesser degree but ConC wanted to be sure to address them all within this report:

1) Committee members from the non-Twin Cities campuses are feeling disadvantaged. These members are being encouraged to save time and money by not attending Senate committee meetings in person. However, participation via a telephone conferencing system is significantly inferior to in-person participation. The result can often be that the voices of non-Twin Cities campus members are not being heard as effectively in committee discussions. Technology for tele-presence at remote meetings has come a long way from telephone conferencing; yet the primary Senate committee meeting rooms, most notably those in Morrill Hall, remain woefully stuck with this primitive technology. The Senate Committee on Committees urges the Senate Consultative Committee to take up the issue of tele-presence at meetings with the appropriate University administrators with the goal of developing and implementing a solution that would enable non-Twin Cities Senate committee members to participate more fully in meetings as soon as possible. At a minimum, the solution should be applied to the most commonly used meeting rooms in Morrill Hall. This vital link between Senate committees and all their members throughout the state should not be left to the vagaries of old technology.

2) As e-learning becomes a more important part of the University curriculum, ConC encourages SCC, in its communications with University administration, to consider questions that need to go to Senate Committees for consultation through the formal governance process. Different pieces may need to go to different committees; so this should be an ongoing process. As committee charges need to be adjusted to include the governance work for e-learning, ConC must be consulted to begin the charge change process.

3) Senate Committees are often tasked with issues that fall under the purview of more than one committee. It can be hard for these committees to know if they are addressing problems or working on issues that have already come before, or should come before, another committee. ConC recommends that SCC continue to encourage communication among the committees in as many ways as possible including a. Committee chairs meeting at the beginning of the year to allow chairs to hear what work is expected to come before other committees so that similar issues can be worked on in tandem. Perhaps a second meeting part way through the year to encourage further communication on new issues that have come up.
   b. SCC members, as those most prone to hear of the work of Senate Committees, should keep in their minds work under discussion by one committee that might be of interest or purview to another committee and then encourage committee chairs to talk with each other as issues arise.
   c. ConC is creating a “welcome packet” for new committee chairs and members. This packet will include information on each committee as well as issues that arise in common between committees. Committee chairs with common issues will be encouraged to meet a couple of times a year to ensure they are in communication about issues of common import.

Issues identified by the Committee

AF&T members discussed all sections of their charge with care, and noted some concerns with language and their understanding of the process of post-tenure review, although they are committed to carrying out this portion of their charge.

After careful discussion of the functioning of the committee itself, the effectiveness of its communication with other committees, and its ability to present resolutions to the Senate, it was thought that an internal review might prove an effective means of providing information and continuity for the committee and especially for new chairs.

ConC Recommendations for this Committee

While no specific requests or recommendations for changes emerged from this visit, AF&T members reiterated the importance of continuing representation and attendance by more than telephone for coordinate campus representatives, and the importance that the ConC continue to provide a broadly representative mix of nominations for membership. Co-Chair Carl Flink suggested that more CLA members would be useful, given the wide variety of units in that college.
Upon review of the draft report, AF&T noted that two graduate students have been asked to participate in the committee discussions in 2011-12. AF&T made a formal request to modify its membership to permanently include two graduate students and ConC has approved this request.

Issues identified by the Committee
At the start of the discussion, Rick McCormick mentioned that he had chaired the Council on Liberal Education (CLE) for two years in the early part of the last decade. CLE Chair Peter Hudleston and staff member Laurel Carroll explained a bit about how things had changed since then: All documents relevant to the consideration of each course are now online, which saves photocopying; the Council now forms itself into teams that divide up the courses to be considered. Each team reviews about six courses per meeting and makes recommendations as to whether each course should be approved for the LE theme and/or core for which it is being considered. Periodically, and especially at the beginning of each academic year, the entire Council reviews some of the courses, so that all members, especially the new ones, become familiar with how the Council evaluates courses and so that everyone is "on the same page" about this, as it were.

The Council is now considering both new proposals for courses to meet LE core requirements and themes and also proposals to recertify courses that already meet LE requirements. When the LE requirements were revised and the revised requirements went into effect in the Fall of 2010, a new, fifth LE theme was added, Technology and Society. Since 2010, the requirement that each student take a course in each of the 5 themes has been revised; now each student needs only to take courses in 4 of the 5 themes (Global Perspectives, Social Justice & Diversity in the US, Civic Life & Ethics, Environment, and Technology & Society).

In response to the question of whether CLE's charge needed revision, there was consensus that it does because it is very outdated. The old names of the LE core and theme requirements from before the 2010 revision are used in the charge, and there is still mention in it of "distribution requirements," which the LE system replaced in the early 1990s.

The members on the Council are not appointed by the Senate Committee on Committees, but rather by the Vice Provost for Undergraduate Education. The undergraduate representative on the committee stated his opinion that there should be at least another undergraduate on the committee. Otherwise the sentiment of the members was that the constituency of the Council was adequately representative; not all colleges are represented, but the members do not represent the colleges so much as the academic disciplines responsible for teaching the kinds of courses that meet the core and theme requirements.

The feeling of the members was also that the current size of the Council is sufficient to accomplish its work. A smaller Council would be burdened with too many courses for its members to review, and a larger one would make scheduling meetings more difficult.

There are no ex-officio members. The Vice Provost for Undergraduate Education attends meetings occasionally; the members were not certain exactly what the status of the Vice Provost is with regard to membership on the Council.

The Council has dual reporting lines: it reports both to the Vice Provost for Undergraduate Education and to the Senate Committee on Educational Policy.

ConC Recommendations for this Committee

Action already begun: CLE members agreed that updating the committee charge should be done. ConC defined a process for the update: staff from CLE and ConC would create a draft of a new charge, that draft was created and sent to CLE for review. CLE will review the draft and send it to ConC for final review and ConC will send it on to the SCC and then for approval by the full Senate. The revision of charge is expected to be approved in spring 2013.

Issues identified by the Committee

Overall
Generally the committee is functioning well and is a very busy committee. The charge is appropriate and the size of the committee is probably at or near its upper limit for productivity. Regarding the charge and agenda, it was noted that Provost Hanson at a recent visit to SCEP asked the committee to be “less reactive and more proactive.” The committee might consider how to achieve this. For example, the practice of the FCC is to develop and have the committee prioritize possible issues of interest at the start of the academic year. SCEP could consider ways of allowing the members to be more involved in agenda setting, as desired.

Member Mix
ConC should be sure that SCEP continues to have a mix within its membership. There should be a mix of members who work with grad and undergrad programs, and among science and non-science specialties. At present, the biological sciences may be overrepresented on the committee. Other areas of possible consideration for committee membership are interest in global programs and interdisciplinary programs. At least one member felt a voting member from the global programs office would be useful; however, others argued against expanding the committee on this basis. The counterargument is partly one of committee size, partly one of committee philosophy—members are expected to serve the university’s interests, not particular programs, colleges, or special interests. It also is recognized that when the committee has special needs for input on a particular topic at a meeting, they extend invitations to visitors as needed.

Ex-Officio Representation
There are a number of areas where a joint effort is needed (e.g., with the Faculty Consultative Committee). The ex officio representation is adequate and the administrators have used the committee appropriately as a sounding board. One possibility for the committee to consider is whether Academic Support Resources should perhaps have an ex officio representative.

Gray areas
There are at least a couple areas of concern that by policy or in meetings are placed under SCEP whose relevance to the committee charge is unclear or which seem to have multiple homes. There is an issue of responsibility and/or things falling through the cracks, e.g.:

1. E-education: There are a number of groups dealing with learning and e-education so there is always the question about where issues should be discussed in a very decentralized organization.
2. Faculty workload: The committee has just discussed defining a credit hour and how it affects faculty workload. It was also noted that the faculty workload policy currently is under SCEP responsibility. Could this be an issue better suited for the Senate Committee on Faculty Affairs?

General Governance Issue (Beyond SCEP)
Morris members on all U committees received a memo from the Senate Office at the beginning of the academic year encouraging them to participate remotely at Senate meetings. However, the feedback from those who have participated at meetings remotely by phone (current standard practice) is that it is not close to being the same as in-person participation. ConC should consider a recommendation to look into better alternatives to remote participation than conference calling.

ConC Recommendations for this Committee

There are no specific recommendations for this committee other than to encourage the close work with Faculty Affairs on issues that will be of concern to both committees, such as the faculty workload issue.

Issues identified by the Committee:
The members surveyed were almost unanimous in their response to the first question, feeling that the committee did an excellent job in meeting the charge of the committee, and that the charge itself was appropriate. Similarly, the number of members was deemed appropriate. While large, the potential variety of cases and the diverse nature of the faculty require a committee of this size. The need to have long-serving members and a strong system for acquainting new members with the committee’s charge and operational mechanisms were mentioned by multiple respondents. Membership distribution was considered reasonable, although the need for members from coordinate campuses and the involvement of a diverse faculty cohort (faculty of color, foreign-born faculty, etc.) were stressed by respondents. Finally, no ex officio members were deemed appropriate, other than the legal counsel already provided. The legal counsel was mentioned as being vital to the committee by multiple respondents, as was the need to remain independent of any administrative involvement.

Only minor concerns were identified during the review process. The membership of the committee should be maintained at the current size, with an ongoing consideration that representation of a diverse faculty group, including involvement of coordinate campus faculty, is necessary for the proper function of the committee. Independent legal counsel is required for this committee, and should be maintained. Incoming committee members should be thoroughly briefed on the charge and the activities of the committee, with emphasis on the independent nature of the committee.

ConC Recommendations for this Committee:

ConC should consider appointments from a diverse faculty group, including involvement from all campuses with non-unionized faculty.

Continued training and independent attorneys for this committee, while not now lacking, are vital to help ensure the independence of this committee from University administration.

Issues identified by the Committee
Member responses indicated that the charge does encompass the work of the committee and the current distribution is adequate. Members of this committee are pleased with the training they received before serving on a hearing committee and the way hearings are conducted. Each hearing is given the time and effort appropriate for the charge by each member. Deliberations are conducted respectfully and methodically.

Committee members responded that the committee functions extremely well and serves an incredibly important role at the U. Some of the hearings and deliberations are quite long but all members take their roles seriously. Comments were received regarding difficulty at times of securing enough panel members for a hearing on a particular day and time or over the summer months, as well as assuring that there are enough student panel members who can better relate to the students being charged through this process.

One member commented that the timing and uncertainty of the hearing duration can be hard for members who have personal conflicts after work hours, since most hearings continue past 5:00 pm. Another member wrote that involving alumni as hearing panel members might also bring a useful perspective to the hearing process.

ConC Recommendations for this Committee

While the response rate from committee members was not as strong as hoped, there was nothing that stood out as something that needed to be changed or shifted with this committee.
APPENDIX 1
Information Presented to Each Committee

A. Letter sent to Each Committee Chair from the Chair of the Committee on Committees – August 2012

DRAFT of letter to committee chairs to initiate the ConC’s rolling review process in Fall 2012

Dear [colleague],

As part of its regular function, each year the Committee on Committees (ConC) asks Senate committee chairs and others for recommendations for committee membership. A second function of our committee is to communicate with all committees on a routine basis to ensure that their charges are current and that the committee feels comfortable working to achieve that charge; this review process occurs on a 4-5 year average cycle.

We started this process again last fall and now [committee name] is one of the groups that we will interview this fall, with the rest of the committees to follow in subsequent years. As the first step in this process, I would like to meet with you to get your views on your committee’s charge and capacity. Following that meeting, a few members of the ConC will be an agenda item at a fall semester meeting of your committee, preferably October or early November, to review and discuss the committee charge with the committee. We will invite all members of the committee and its staff to give their input through email in the weeks following this meeting.

Members of the ConC will then draft a report, to be shared with you, for consideration by the ConC as a whole. Should our discussion result in any recommendation for change in committee structure, charge, or membership, our written recommendation would be sent to the Senate Consultative Committee and to the University/Faculty Senate at large, as is spelled out in our charge as follows:

"b. To meet during the fall semester with committee chairs, on a rotating basis determined by the committee, to review with each committee chair the charge to the committee and how well it has been functioning, and pursuant to these discussions, to make recommendations to the Senate Consultative Committee about any changes in committee structure, charge, or membership which it deems appropriate."

c. To review and forward as appropriate to the University/Faculty Senate any proposed changes to the charge, membership, or ex officio members for committees of the University/Faculty Senate prior to approval from the University/Faculty Senate."

(For the entire text of the ConC charge, please see http://www1.umn.edu/usenate/charges/concch.html)

I look forward to our conversation about your committee’s work. I look forward to having the chance to speak with you about CLE. If it would be more efficient, Becky Hippert from the Senate office can work to set up a time when we can get together to talk about the committee. Just let me know what might work best for you.

Also, please let me know by Wednesday, September 5 at which October or November meeting ConC members can be invited to your committee’s meeting to hold a discussion. Thank you for your time and support in this review process.
